

Why Prepare For Emergencies in Australia?

Emergency Planning

STG Fire
Safety Training

2020 - 2021

Emergencies

Emergencies happen every day. When you consider that workplaces are dealing with an emergency every minute of every day. Preparedness for response to emergencies in the workplace is critical.

Worker Safety

As most will be aware, owner of a business have a duty of care under both state and federal legislation to provide a safe working environment for employees. Emergency planning is just part of the safety process.

Planning

Preparedness, no matter how small will potentially have a huge impact on a workplace. AS 3745-2010 indicates that owners are responsible for implementing a planning committee (EPC). Who's role it is to plan for emergencies.

Training

It is almost impossible to complete an effective emergency plan unless you have a background in emergency management. Therefore, training forms a large part of preparing for emergencies.

Statistics 2019

* Fatalities per 100,000 workers

Machinery Operators
6.2

Mining
3.7

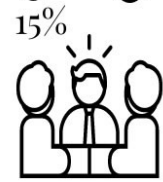

Transportation
5.9

Labourers
2.9

Agriculture*
11.2

15%
Supervisors
1.0

Emergency Type

- Vehicle Collision 31%
- Moving object 17%
- Falls from height 13%
- Falling object 10%
- Trapped 10%
- Other Mechanism 20%

Website: www.stgtraining.com.au

Ph: +61 (03) 9005 1767

Email: admin@stgtraining.com.au

SCAN ME